

TUESDAY MARCH 20, 1744.

Yesterday arrived a Mail from Holland.

Stockholm, March 11.

W E now only expect the Ratification of the Convention lately concluded between the Courts, in order to disarm, as we are informed they have already begun to do, at Copenhagen. The Conferences that are held daily at the Palace, are said to turn chiefly on Ways and Means to revive and encourage our Manufactures, and to extend our Trade; in order to which, we hear, that an Order will be shortly issued, forbidding the Exportation of raw Copper, restraining that Trade wholly to Copper in Bars this year. We have this Moment Advice, that the Count Wachtmeister, Chamberlain to the Grand Duke of Russia, who was intrusted with a Commission from his Imperial Highness, was lost in passing the Alands-Haff, the Vessel being broke to Pieces by the Ice. He had with him a French Express, charged with Dispatches of great Importance from the M. de la Chetardie, for the French Minister here. We expect here very soon an Ambassador Extraordinary from the Emperor, and his Majesty proposes also to send an Ambassador to Frankfurt.

A triple Alliance is on the Point of being concluded, in which the contracting Parties are to be the King of Russia, the King our Sovereign, and the King of Prussia; but the Nature of this Alliance is not yet known to the Publick.

Rome, March 7. Prince Lobkowitz lately sent an Officer, who is also an Engineer, to the little Town Taro, in the Lunegiana, in order to trace out a Camp in its Neighbourhood for 8000 Men. As this town forms a sort of Triangle, the Base of which hath its Extremities, the Ports of Spezzia and Sestri, we conceive that the Design of this Camp is to guard against a Defeat which may be meditated by the two Courts; and what confirms us in this Opinion, is the sending a Battalion of Guards to reinforce the Garrison of Leghorn, which is a plain Indication that our Government is under some Pain about the Safety of that important Post.

Poland, March 10. On Saturday Prince Lobkowitz, the Head of the Austrian Forces, marched with Intent to have attacked the Spaniards, and had actually advanced as far as Ponce; but the same Day the Spaniards retired from the Camp they had so long occupied, and retreated precipitately towards Sinigaglia and Ancona. Count de Gages, in order to secure his Retreat, caused all the Bridges on the River Metauro, to be broken down. On the 8th in the Morning, the Head of the Austrian Army was at Pesaro, and the Vanguard at Fano; all the Light-Horse and Hussars were in Pursuit of the Spaniards, of whom they took many, and sent them Prisoners the next Day to the Camp. The Count de Gages took upon him the sole Conduct of the Retreat, notwithstanding he had sent for the Duke of Modena from Venice, to be present in an Action, which, according to his Letters, was daily expected; and he did he undecieve his Serene Highness, even after his Arrival in the Army, or communicate to him the Spent which he had received, of the Defeat of the Commanders; which was the true and only Motive to his precipitate Retreat, by which the Spanish Troops were like to be totally undone.

Danzick, March 15. The Domesticks belonging to a Prince and Princess of Brunswick, while they were confined in the Fort of Dunamond, have passed through the City in their return to Germany. On their arrival on the Frontiers of Courland, they were forbid to enter, for the Time to come, the Territories either of the Duchy, or of the Empire of Russia, without the Permission of the Court. According to the common Opinion, the Princess of Brunswick is removed to the Imperial Monastery of our Lady of Troitzka, which is four Leagues from Moscow, where she is treated with very great Respect, but very closely confined. The Countess of Tyrawitz, his Britannick Majesty's Ambassador Extraordinary to the Court of Russia, arrived here on the 14th, and did not set out again for Petersburg till Yesterday Morning, after receiving an Express from Sir John Wey, by which he inform'd him, that his Excellency was impatiently expected by the Russian Court, where all Things were in the most favourable Situation for his Negotiations, and where, it was not doubted, they would meet with all the Success he could possibly expect. When this Express set out, M. de la Chetardie was still at Petersburg, but was preparing to go to Moscow.

Vienna, March 14. His Prussian Majesty's Minister at this Court, having given her Majesty the strongest Assurance of his Master's observing exactly the Neutrality stipulated by the Treaty of Breslaw, it has been resolved to leave strong Garrisons in the Cities of Prague, Egra, Brin, and Olmutz, and to march all the rest of the Regular Troops, at present in Bohemia and Moravia, into Bavarra, where the Troops are to quit their Winter Quarters as To-morrow, in order to form three Camps; two on the Danube, and the Third in the Upper Palatinate, on the Frontiers of Franconia. It is said, that the Count de Coidova will be made Vice-President to the Council of War; that Count Henry Daun will have the Government of Slavonia; and that the Prince of Esterhazy, and the Count de Grune, will be promoted, the former to the Command of the Archers of the Guard, and the latter to that of the Company of Halberdeers. The overflowing of the Danube has occasioned prodigious Mischief here, where no less than 600 Persons were drowned in their Houses, and in the Streets. We have an Account likewise from Hefsbourg, of no less Mischief done there by the same Accident; but as the Waters begin to abate, we hope the Danger is now pretty well over. It is impossible to express what indefatigable Pains were taken by her Majesty, and the Grand Duke, to relieve the poor People in their Distress, on this Occasion.

Berlin, March 20. His Majesty has lately published a Kind of State of War, containing an exact Account of the present Condition of his Military Establishment; according to which, his Majesty has at present in his Pay, six Field-Marsbals, a Grand Master of the Ordinance, six Generals, a General of Artillery, 12 Lieutenant-Generals, 47 Major-Generals, 7 Colonels, who have each a Regiment, 8 Aids du Camp Generals, 58 Regiments of Foot, making, in the Whole, 105,300 Men; 27 of Horse, amounting to 29,700 Men, and 6897 Men in Garrisons. The Marriage of her Royal Highness the Princess Ulrica, to the Prince Royal of Sweden, was declared on the 17th in the Evening, at the Court of the Queen Dowager. We are assured, that 40,000 Men of our Troops, have Orders to hold themselves in Readiness to march, on three Days Notice; but whether, or on what Account, remains an absolute Secret. We have just now received Advice, that the famous Chief of the Peasants of Poland, has been seized, which it is thought will put an End to a Rebellion, the Consequences of which we much dreaded. It is generally reported here, that the Margrave Charles of Brandenburg will shortly espouse the Princess Amelia of Hesse-Cassel; and that there is a great Probability of that Prince being chosen Duke of Courland.

Paris, March 23. The following is said to be a true Copy of the Letter written by his Catholick Majesty to the Infant Don Philip, in relation to the late Battle in the Mediterranean.

As soon as our combined Squadron sailed out of the Port of Toulon, Mathews's bore down upon the Spaniards in Line of Battle, with the Bloody Flag displayed. As soon as he perceived M. de Court, he withdrew his Red Flag, hoisted a White one, and fired two Pieces of Canon, by Way of Salute, loaded with Powder only, and then attacked the Spaniards, who were in the Centre. The Engagement lasted six Hours, between 12 Spanish Ships, and 38 English. The French remained quiet Spectators, without so much as firing a Gun. At last the Night put an End to the Engagement. The Spaniards were torn all to Pieces, nor did the English escape without a great deal of Loss; for the former borrowing Courage from their Despair, fought with admirable Valour. The Royal Philip alone defended herself against five Men of War. The Hercules having lost all her Masts, attempted twice to grapple with board Admiral Mathews, which he avoided; and she was surrounded and taken. The English left her Crew on-board on their Parole, putting only 15 Men, and an Officer, on board her. The Spaniards perceiving this, and that the English were retiring, returned to the Charge, and retook the Ship; but finding it impossible to keep her above Water, they took out the Crew, and burnt her. They lost in this Battle seven Captains of Ships, and abundance of Officers and Soldiers besides.

L O N D O N.

Some Advices from Constantinople, by the Way of Venice, say, that about the Middle of the Month of January last, there happened a great Insurrection, the Consequences of which could not be foreseen when these Letters came away.

Letters from Munich, dated the 16th of March, N. S. inform us, that Te Deum had been sung that Day in their Cathedral, by Order of her Hungarian Majesty, on account of the great Victory gained by Admiral Mathews over the combined Squadrons in the Mediterranean; a particular Account of which is said to be printing at Vienna.

Several private Letters from Switzerland mention a Battle in Italy, between Prince Lobkowitz and the Spaniards, who waited for him, where, as they fancied, they should have the Advantage in Ground; but it is said they were mistaken, and that they have been totally defeated, with the Loss of 7000 Men killed on the Spot.

According to the last Letters from Genoa, the Spanish Army is advanced within a Day and a half's March of the City of Nice; which, it was believed, they would speedily invest, unless his Sardinian Majesty should give them Battle.

According to Letters from Ostend of the 23d, the Embargo at Dunkirk is still continued; tho' it is generally believed, that the intended Expedition is given over for this Year.

On the 16th, N. S. an English Courier made a short Stay at Brussels, in order to deliver a Packet to General Honeywood, and then continued his Journey towards Paris with the utmost Diligence; being charged, as he said, with Dispatches of the last Importance for Mr. Thompson, our Minister at that Court.

Private Letters from Paris say, that the Court has promised the Prince de Campo Florido, that M. de Court shall fully answer any Charge that is brought against him; and it is not doubted, he will give the same Satisfaction. M. Broglie did to the Complaints made against him by the Emperor; much of the same Kind with those his Catholick Majesty now makes against M. de Court.

The same Letters say, that the City of Paris is in the utmost Consternation, on Account of the Misfortune of both our Expeditions; and that, in order to revive the Spirits of the People, it was given out, that his Majesty would command in Person this Year in Flanders.

Notwithstanding this Report, the Actions of the East-India Company are sunk to 2015.

Their Serene Highnesses Prince Charles of Lorraine, and the Archduchess his Consort, arrived on Thursday last, in the Atterno n. at Brussels.
